- Discovery is made that a bank's programmer inserted a program in which $100 was added to randomly selected accounts without the actual money being deposited. The bank may suffer a financial loss.
- Thieves drill a hole in the roof of one of the bank branches and gain access to the vault containing safe deposit boxes. Twenty of the safe deposit boxes are emptied. The box holders claim value the lost contents total $1,500,000. The bank may suffer a financial loss.
- A loan officer grants a loan based on forged stock certificates as collateral and the borrower skips with the loan proceeds. The bank may suffer a financial loss.
- A customer comes into the bank with $100,000 worth of foreign currency. The customer requests a cashier's check in exchange for the currency. After the cashier's check is negotiated, it is discovered the money was counterfeit. The bank may suffer a financial loss.
- The bank receives an e-mail, which it believes is instruction from a large client to transfer funds to another bank in another country. This client has been approved for this type of transfer, so the bank transfers the funds according to the instruction. The client informs the bank that it did not send this e-mail nor authorize the money to be transferred. The bank may suffer a financial loss.

Products and services are provided by one or more insurance company subsidiaries of W. R. Berkley Corporation. Not all products and services are available in every jurisdiction, and the precise coverage afforded by any insurer is subject to the actual terms and conditions of the policies as issued. Certain coverages may be provided through surplus lines insurance company subsidiaries of W. R. Berkley Corporation through licensed surplus lines brokers. Surplus lines insurers do not generally participate in state guaranty funds and insureds are therefore not protected by such funds.

This material does not amend, or otherwise affect, the provisions or coverage of any insurance policy issued by any W. R. Berkley Corporation member insurance company. It is not a representation that coverage does or does not exist for any particular claim or loss under any such policy. Coverage depends on the facts and circumstances involved in the claim or loss, all applicable policy provisions, and any applicable law. Availability of coverage referenced in this document can depend on underwriting qualifications and state regulations.
